He had so many friends in high places that he thought he was safe.

… a refinement of CAI which we should like to look into … [is] a blurring of the distinction between 'research program' and 'teaching/learning program'. What I have in mind here is an interactive program which would give the language-learner a 'user-friendly' tool for investigating problems in the target language—for example, the use in context of a problem word, or the vocabulary of a certain type of text.
